

PROPOSITION IS PRESENTED

To Merchants' Association by the President of an Ohio Manufacturing Company.

FACTORY WILL BE MOVED HERE

If Conditions Are Met by Citizens.—Committee is Making an Investigation.

An Ohio Manufacturing Company appreciating the excellent shipping facilities of Seymour and realizing its other advantages as a location for a factory, desires to move their establishment here.

The Gem Incubator Company of Trotwood, Ohio, is the concern referred to. J. W. Sauer, the president of the company, was here this week, went over the city, looked at the American Chair Factory building which has been idle for some time and made a careful investigation of conditions here.

He was so well satisfied that he has presented to the Merchants' Association, a formal proposition to locate here, if certain conditions are complied with.

He proposes to buy the old chair factory building but asks that the citizens of Seymour, subscribe for $2,500 of the Incubator Company's accumulative preferred stock to be paid for and issued by July 1, 1912. This money is to be used to pay off a mortgage for the amount stated which is now on the building. The mortgage is due next year.

The company also asks that the citizens subscribe $1,000 to be used in removing the machinery and material from Trotwood to Seymour and locating the building here.

It is agreed in return that if these conditions are met within thirty days the factory will be moved and that 50 people will be employed within six months after the factory is located. The company also guarantees to bring $15,000 worth of machinery, materials, stock and cash.

The executive committee of the Merchants' Association, has the proposition under consideration at present and will make a careful investigation of the company's business and responsibility before any action is taken.

It is stated that at present 35 men are employed in the factory, but the company is cramped for room and the shipping facilities at their present location are poor. The men employed are mostly skilled mechanics and receive good wages.

President Sauer in his proposition to the Merchants' Association, says it is made, "after investigation covering labor conditions, materials, shipping and manufacturing facilities."

The American Factory building is a commodious structure and ought to be occupied. The only disadvantage which has presented itself to manufacturers in considering it, has been its distance from a railroad. The citizens would be glad to see the building occupied.

SHERIFF HERE

Hunting For Man Who Stole Team at Columbus.

Sheriff Frank S. Cox, of Bartholomew county, was in Seymour this morning looking for traces of a man who stole a team of horses from Charles Hughes' livery stable in Columbus Tuesday. When he hired the team he represented to the liveryman that he was a fruit tree agent and had some orders to deliver. He failed to return that evening but the owner of the horses thought probably that he had had difficulty in finding some of his customers and in making collections, as is frequently the case. He did not grow anxious until Thursday, when the officers were notified. No trace of the man was found in Bartholomew county, and, as the last that could be heard of him was that he was headed south, the officer came here to investigate. Many inquiries were made here but no trace of the stranger could be secured and Sheriff Cox returned to Columbus to seek some other clew. The detective societies and officers throughout southern Indiana have been notified. The team is a valuable one.

THE CONSIDERATION

Of the Applications For Liquor Licenses, May 1.

The applications for licenses to sell liquor in Seymour, Brownstown, Medora and Dudleytown, will come up for consideration at the meeting of the county commissioners to be held one week from next Monday. If the elections in Brownstown and Carr townships to be held April 27, result in favor of the dries, the Brownstown and Medora applications will not receive attention. It is not known whether the board will make any particular investigation of the character of the applicants. In Seymour there are two more applications than can be allowed and it is supposed if objections to the granting of any of them should be filed, the objections would receive careful consideration. At Columbus the commissioners spent several days considering the applications, investigating the character of the applicants and hearing evidence as to the latter. They prepared a long list of special questions which the applicants were required to answer. In some other counties, applicants have had to face a review of their entire lives by the board and have had the unpleasant experience of having all the infractions of the law of which they had ever been guilty, hung up for inspection.

After the licenses are granted, the successful applicants can open their places of business as soon as the necessary fees are paid, unless the board fixes a particular date on which all may open their saloons. This has been the case in a number of counties.

Perry Madden, Young Man Living Near Peters Switch, Kicked by a Horse.

HAULING CORN TO SEYMOUR.

Compound Fracture of Bone in Left Leg.—Will Be Laid Up For Some Time.

Perry Madden, whose home is near Peters Switch, was kicked by a horse this morning and badly hurt.

While on the road to Seymour with a load of corn, he stood up on the foot board on the front end of the wagon to put on his coat. While he was standing, one of the horses kicked him on the left ankle, crushing it against the wagon end. The pain and shock were so great that Mr. Madden fell backward on the load of corn unconscious. William Olinger and Arthur Spray, who were also hauling corn and who were following Mr. Madden, noticed the latter fall and climbed off their wagons and ran forward. They worked with Mr. Madden some time before he regained consciousness and it was not until the latter occurred, that they learned of the injury he had received.

A buggy was secured and the young man was taken to his home which is with his father, Richard Madden, one mile southwest of Peters Switch. A physician was called and an examination by him showed a compound fracture of the bone.

The injury is an extremely painful one and Mr. Madden will probably be laid up for some time.

THAT ECLIPSE

Of the Sun Will Be Visible Here About Sunset.

The partial eclipse of the sun which is scheduled for April 28, will be visible in Seymour and Southern Indiana about sunset, according to the information given out by Prof. Coggeshall of Indiana University.

If the weather is clear, the moon will be seen cutting across the southern edge of the sun and will darken a small portion of the disc for half an hour. Ohio is barely within the northern limit of the eclipse. Scientists are looking forward, however, to the eclipse of next October, when the moon will pass between the earth and the sun.

Astronomers are bawling the fact that the total eclipse of the sun, next Friday is not to be seen in the United States. The eclipse will be total only a part of the Pacific ocean, which includes the Samoan and Friendly island and a small part of the southeastern coast of Australia. The line of the total eclipse will be in the form of a path seventy-five miles in width from south-eastern Australia to the equator, near South America. In this path the eclipse will be total for two and one half to five minutes. To see the eclipse scientists would have to make the trip in steamers and take the risk of missing the path and bad weather.

DISEASE AND DEATH.

In Indiana During the Month of March.

The Monthly Bulletin of the State Board of Health, just issued, says: The deaths in March numbered 3,238, rate 14.1. In the same month last year, 3,469, rate 14.8. The deaths under one numbered 423, or 13 per cent of the total. The deaths which occurred of people 65 and over, numbered 1,134, or 35 per cent of the total. Tuberculosis killed 410, Typhoid fever deaths numbered 36, diphtheria 21, scarlet fever, 31, measles 63, whooping cough 40, pneumonia 359, influenza 146, cancer 155, violence 152, smallpox, 2, poliomyelitis 1, death in Howard county.

The cities presented a death rate of 15.4. The country districts a rate of 13. The death rates of the following cities were: Indianapolis 16.5, Evansville 17.9, Ft. Wayne 12.1, Terre Haute 18.4, South Bend 13.6, Muncie 11.3, Anderson 18.9, Richmond 11.1, Hammond 19.7, New Albany 13.7, Lafayette 17.6. The most prevalent disease was measles, next influenza, and next tonsillitis. Pneumonia was eighth in order of prevalence.

February Births: Birth reports are always a month late because the law gives twenty days in which doctors and midwives may report. Total births, 4,365, still births excluded. Males 2,230, females 2,135. Still births 129, white 124, colored 5. White males 2,198. White females 2,100. Colored males 32, colored females 35. State rate 21. Excess of birth rate over death rate 7. Highest birth rate, Brown county, 37.4. Lowest birth rate Putnam county, 11.4.

Pay of Teachers.

Charles A. Greathouse, state superintendent of public instruction, in response to an inquiry from a township trustee, has ruled that when a teacher of the public schools is quarantined by health officials and the school is not closed, but is carried on by a substitute teacher, the quarantined teacher may not collect pay for the time she is kept away from the school. The superintendent says the case considered differs widely from cases in which the school is closed by order of the board and the teacher is prevented, from that cause, from carrying out her contract with the school authorities. The courts have held in the latter class of cases that the teacher may recover under the law regulating contracts.

ORGANIZATION OF A UNION SOCIETY

By Members of the Missionary Societies of the Various Churches of the City.

THE OFFICERS WERE ELECTED

At the Meeting Held Thursday Afternoon at the First Methodist Church.

The Union Missionary Meeting of the societies of all the churches in the city, held Wednesday afternoon under the auspices of the Home and Foreign Societies of the Methodist church was a success.

The meeting was well attended, the program was entertaining and one of the important results of the gathering was the organization of a union society with the following officers:

President, Mrs. C. E. Asbury, of the Methodist church; Vice-president, Miss Almyra Huckleberry of the Baptist church; Secretary, Mrs. J. H. Carter of the Presbyterian church; Treasurer, Mrs. C. R. Hoffmann of the German M. E. church.

An invitation from the Presbyterian Society for the new organization to meet in that church in November was accepted. Another result of the meeting was the forming of plans for the reorganization of the C. W. B. M. of the Christian church. The Society has been inactive for several years. The meeting yesterday afternoon was presided over by Mrs. C. E. Asbury, who originated the plan for holding it and to whose management was largely due its success and the inauguration of this movement which promises greater missionary work in the city. Mrs. R. O. Mayes led the devotional exercises and asked all to sing "I'll go where you want me to go," a favorite missionary hymn. It was followed by prayers for the advancement of missionary work in Seymour and in foreign fields by Mrs. J. K. Ritter, Mrs. John Gebhart and Mrs. A. O. Moulder.

As a scripture lesson the seventh psalm was read and Miss Almyra Huckleberry sang a solo. Mrs. Asbury, who has had considerable experience with Women's Foreign Missionary work, gave a talk. The principal address of the afternoon was by Mrs. O. H. Griest, of Shoals, her subject being "What is there to do more than we have done?" Mrs. Griest is a state worker in the C. W. B. M., which last year celebrated its fiftieth anniversary. She emphasized the fact that much depends on the women for the spreading of the gospel today and asked all to remember that the efforts of the women today will make more and better Christians of the women tomorrow. She closed her splendid talk with Lincoln's Gettysburg address.

Mrs. John L. Kessler, of the Presbyterian church, Mrs. T. C. Smith of the Baptist church and Mrs. R. J. Barbour of the First Methodist church, gave short talks for the societies they represented. Mrs. C. R. Hoffmann was on the program to represent the society of the German M. E. church, but was unable to be present.

The benediction was pronounced by Rev. George Rader. During the social hour which followed the program of music was furnished by Mrs. W. F. Pfaffenberger, Mrs. W. P. Masters and Mrs. Fanny Reynolds. Tea was served in a room prettily decorated to represent a Japanese tea room. It was served by Mrs. Haskell Lett, Mrs. Alpha Cox, Mrs. Harry McColgin and Mrs. O. S. Guernsey. Japanese favors were given.

MARRIED. SMILEY-REED.

On Easter Sunday at 2 p. m. at the beautiful home of the bride-groom's parents on Central Avenue, Indianapolis, Mr. Wallace Smiley of South Dakota, and Miss Hazel Reed, formerly of this city, were married. After the ceremony a reception was held in the parlor. Many costly presents were given the couple, mostly in gold coin. After luncheon the guests were taken to the Union Station in taxicabs to speed the young people on their way to their new home at Mobridge, S. Dak., where Mr. Smiley has a lucrative position with an electric company.

Guy Prewitt and Miss Mayme Aufenberg, both of this city, were married Thursday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell Prewitt at Crothersville by the Rev. Mr. Arvin of the First Baptist church. The groom is the son of Mrs. Mary B. Prewitt of West Jackson street and is employed at the Seymour Woolen Mill. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Aufenberg of West Laurel street. They will reside for the present with the groom's mother.

To Return to Key.

The intention of the B. & O. railroad to install telephones on the West Virginia and Pittsburg division, has been abandoned, which means that the telegraph will probably remain the permanent method of communication over the entire system. On the Parkersburg branch, where experiments have been made with the phone method for the last three months, the results have been so unsatisfactory that it has been abolished, although the most modern equipment was employed, it failed to come up to expectations, the principal objections being the loss of time and increased chances for mistakes. The method has never been popular with dispatchers or operators and they are glad to return to the key.

WARLIKE WORDS IN THE SENATE

Stone of Missouri Urges Drastic Action.

WOULD EMPLOY FORCE OF ARMS

Resolution Proposed by the Gentleman From Missouri in Effect, Senator Root Points Out, Would Be a Declaration of War—First Discussion of the Mexican Situation in the Upper House.

Washington, April 21.—The Mexican situation was discussed in congress for the first time when Senator Stone of Missouri, Democrat, urged that the president be empowered to employ force to prevent a repetition of the "bloody outrage" committed at Douglas. Senator Stone was very harsh toward Mexico in referring to occurrences along the border. The fact that he is a member of the senate committee on foreign relations added to the gravity of his statement.

Senators Bacon of Georgia, Root of New York and Lodge of Massachusetts, all members of the foreign relations committee, vigorously opposed Senator Stone's suggestion that the president be empowered by congress to use the military forces of the United States according to his discretion. They declared that the adoption of such a resolution would amount to a declaration of war against Mexico.

Senator Stone praised the president for having acted wisely in the face of great provocation. "Congress," said he, "should at once and without delay authorize the president to employ whatever force may be necessary to prevent a repetition of the bloody outrage committed at Douglas, and a repetition of which is threatened at El Paso, Tex." Senator Root said Mexico would make redress when claim is made in the ordinary way and through peaceful negotiations. The passage of such a resolution as described, he said, would be equivalent to a declaration of war. He said it is in the interest of peace that congress refrain from discussing Mexico.

The Stone resolution was referred to the committee on foreign relations.

Senator Culberson of Texas introduced a resolution declaring it to be the sense of the senate that the United States should refrain from intervention in Mexico and maintain a neutral attitude. The resolution was referred to the committee on foreign relations.

NOTHING IN IT

Reported Snobbery in the Navy Is Officially Denied.

Washington, April 21.—The latest reports from Annapolis show that Miss Mary Beers, daughter of Professor Beers of New Haven, was not prevented from attending a hop at the academy because it was alleged that she was a governess.

The fact is that Miss Beers, who was the companion of the wife of Lieutenant Commander Tarrant, did actually attend the ball, and that it was ten days after her success that it occurred to "an individual," as he is officially described, to say to an officer that it was not the proper thing for a woman on the social plane of Miss Beers to have been seen at a middie's hop.

The navy department was inclined to ignore the gossip and did ignore it until there was a threat to have the whole matter brought up in congress. The department got a report from Superintendent Bowyer of the academy, stating that the individual did not represent the fine spirit of the academy.

HARD TO GIVE IT UP

Danville Grand Jury Abandons Election Fraud Quest.

Danville, Ill., April 21.—Investigation of vote buying and political corruption in Vermillion county has come to an end and the grand jury has adjourned. Failure to get the support of the sheriff and other county officials is said to be the reason for the termination of the grand jury's labors in investigating politics in Cannon's congressional district. Obstacles were placed in the way of the jury.

A batch of subpoenas issued by the body was "lost, strayed, or stolen," so no witnesses appeared. Opposition also came from Judge Kimbrough in the form of a ruling prohibiting the jury from delving back more than eighteen months, which placed all members of the Kimbrough-Plat machine, elected two years ago, out of reach of possible indictments.

OSTEOPATHY

Liberates the inherent forces of the body; whereby uniform blood and nerve supply is established, assimilation is quickened, poisonous waste matter is eliminated, diseased parts are adjusted and strengthened, giving nature a chance to perform her proper work and build from simple food all parts of the body. Thus deep seated, chronic cases are aided to recover after other remedies fail.

AS WITH AUTO AND WATCH so with the human body; it gets out of running order through the process of life and needs repairing. No defective machine can turn out good work. Every day that an "unclean" watch, auto, or any other machine is compelled to run, wears seriously its vital parts and saps its vitality. The longer you try to work while the body machinery is out of gear, the greater will be the damage it suffers. Health depends upon the human machine being kept in good mechanical order. Adjustment of the human body is the particular and special work of THE SPAUNHURST OSTEOPATHS.

That they are expert machinists and fix what is wrong is being demonstrated at their office over the First National Bank, Seymour, Phone 557. There can be no good reason for you to remain irritable and out of gear when opportunity to get well is knocking at your door. It is for you, sick friend. No charge is made for examination, and now is the time to drive away that tired feeling that usually comes with spring time.

If you know of any chronic cases on which the physicians of your locality have expended every available resource and failed, do them a good turn by directing them to the osteopaths that they may demonstrate to them the efficacy of their treatment.

Reasonable time is absolutely necessary to overcome chronic cases of long standing. Hence you should be fair with the osteopath and take treatment sufficient time to adjust what is mechanically wrong and effect a permanent cure. The treatment is neither harsh nor painful, not a cure-all, but it makes more full and permanent cures of rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica, headaches, catarrh, asthma, paralysis, poor circulation, stomach and bowel disorders, than other methods. a19mwf-tf

Germes in Mail.

When Henry Mueller, a mail distributor at the Terre Haute postoffice, was too ill to come to work, a physician said his lungs were affected, and his word being carried to the office caused the clerks to count the dead from the distributing department in the last five years whose deaths were caused by tuberculosis. It has averaged one clerk a year and there is no longer doubt that the germs of the disease come into the office with the mail. When a sack of mail is thrown upside down, with the mouth open, on a floor, there arises a fine dust. A consumptive sealing an envelope and affixing a stamp on a letter in New York may easily infect a mail clerk in Terre Haute or elsewhere.

MOB MURDER ON THEATER STAGE

Bloody Drama In Real Life
In Kentucky Town.

NEGRO RIDDLED BY BULLETS

Arrested For Killing a White Man, a Livermore Negro Was Concealed in the Opera House For Safe Keeping, but Mob Caught on and, Binding the Trembling Victim on the Stage, Opened Fire From the Pit.

Calhoun, Ky., April 21.—In the little opera house at Livermore the most realistic drama which has ever been played on an American stage was enacted when Will Potter, a negro, in the part of the star, was shot from the orchestra pit by a half hundred citizens of that place. Potter and Frank Mitchell, a young white man of Livermore, had quarreled in a poolroom earlier in the evening, and while homeward bound the latter was shot through the back and killed by the former.

The negro was captured and hurried to the lockup, and fearing that the mob would storm the place, Marshal Staebler hid his charge in the basement of the opera house. Soon after the shooting occurred a mob was formed and a search made for the negro. Having been told of the hiding place, the opera house was immediately surrounded and an entrance was forced. The prisoner was demanded by the mob, and seeing that resistance was useless, the trembling black was turned over to the mercy of the infuriated citizens. Methodically as the modern stage manager, the setting was arranged. The negro was tied up on the stage, the lights turned on and the overture which was played was the cocking of fifty weapons; the curtain was rung up and at a signal from the leader the body was riddled with bullets.

SLAIN BY POSSE

More Than 200 Shots Fired in Taking a Negro in West Virginia.

Huntington, W. Va., April 21.—S. J. Jennings, a negro murderer, wanted in Firebrick, Ky., for killing a white man, was surrounded by a posse in an old brick kiln on the outskirts of Huntington and shot to death. More than 200 bullets were fired at Jennings before a policeman crept up to the kiln and killed the fugitive. None of the posse was injured, although Jennings fought them off for more than an hour.

YOUTHFUL BURGLARS

Logansport Lads Admit a Series of Eighteen Burglaries.

Logansport, Ind., April 21.—Three burglars who fought a running pistol fight with the police and escaped, were captured later and proved to be Noel Morehead, Harley Manuel and Clarence Shaw, three eighteen-year-old boys, living on the south side. They had been detected robbing the Keller meat market, and when the police opened fire they returned the shots. A book dropped by one of the boys gave a clue to their identity, and they were arrested at their homes. Morehead made a confession and acknowledged they were responsible for the recent epidemic of robberies. He gave a list of eighteen stores which they had robbed within two months. The most obtained at any one place was $70.

Three Victims of Grade Crossing. Jeffersonville, Ind., April 21.—James Taney, aged sixty, his wife, fifty-five, and their adopted daughter, May Hodges, aged sixteen, were instantly killed half a mile north of Sellersburg by a fast train on the Pennsylvania road. The three were driving in a covered vehicle, and it is supposed the sides of the vehicle hid the approaching train.

Followed Brother's Example. Indianapolis, April 21.—Arthur Adams, formerly a member of a detective agency, shot and killed himself in a room on the third floor of the Stubbins hotel. Adams is a brother of the late Ferd L. Adams, head of the detective agency, who killed himself in a similar way early in February in a room at the Denison hotel.

Was Short in His Accounts. Morganfield, Ky., April 21.—Sheriff James W. Carter of Union county killed himself in his stable by shooting through the temple. A shortage of $6,000 had been discovered in his accounts and he had been given a week to make up the amount due the county.

Body Burning When Found. Bowling Green, Ind., April 21.—George Goshorn, aged seventy-four, was found dead in his room. Heart failure caused death. Goshorn died while sitting by a hot stove, and one of his feet was burned off when the body was found.

Schoolboy Killed by Streetcar. Terre Haute, Ind., April 21.—Leon Nichols, aged eight, was struck and instantly killed by a streetcar here. He was on his way to school when caught by the car.

CITIZENSHIP DENIED TO WIFE DESERTERS

Judge Anderson Turns Down Two Such Applicants.

Hammond, Ind., April 21.—Judge A. B. Anderson of the United States district court at Hammond, ruling in the case of two applicants for second papers, declared: "You can't desert your wife and be regarded as good material for citizenship in the United States."

In this part of the country it is an unheard-of thing for a judge to go into the domestic relations of a man in determining his desirability as a citizen, but citizenship was denied two men for the reason that they are not supporting their wives. Judge Anderson seems to take the good citizen's view of the case.

Welam Kasnauski, a bartender at Indiana Harbor, admitted he had deserted his wife in the old country, and citizenship papers were denied him. Citizenship also was denied Michael Puljerich, a Hammond barber, for the reason that he, too, had abandoned his wife.

It is expected that practically three-quarters of the applicants at the next session of the United States court will be saloon keepers who will seek their second papers in order that they may be qualified to apply for the renewal of their saloon licenses.

The rights of full citizenship were denied three saloon keepers for the reason that they admitted keeping their places of business open on Sundays.

Millions For Tobacco Growers.

Lexington, Ky., April 21.—Distribution of $2,600,000 to farmers of Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky will take place May 10, according to an announcement from the headquarters of the Burley Tobacco society here. This money will constitute the second distribution this year of proceeds from the 1909 pool of white burley tobacco. Three more payments of similar amounts are expected.

THE SOUTHEASTERN

It is Reported, May be Sold to the Pennsylvania Company.

It is reported from Indianapolis today that fourteen mines, the coal property formerly controlled by John R. Walsh, have been sold to eastern capitalists. It is believed that this sale may foreshadow the disposal of the Southeastern to the same parties who have secured the mines. A special from Terre Haute today says: It is believed here in circles well informed on the adjudication of the Walsh affairs that the sale of the coal mines is preliminary to the sale of his Southern Indiana railroad, now the Chicago & Southeastern. The coal traffic is all that is done on the Chicago division and extensions for development of other business would mean a large outlay which the Chicago banks do not care to make, it is said. A payment of $1,350,000 for mining properties brings the amount advanced by the banks down to $2,750,000, for which they hold bonds of the railroad company. The railroad could be sold for enough, it is said, to give the banks a handsome profit on their advance of money to "save the situation" in Chicago when Walsh failed.

It is said that the deal for mining properties was made in the east and as the same interests that control the Vandalia Coal Company, own the Vandalia Railroad Company, the conjecture is that the Pennsylvania system is to get the railroad property also.

There are no new developments today in the matter of the switch to the Seymour Manufacturing Co.'s plant. The engineer from the Southeastern lines who is to make surveys of some proposed routes for the switch, may not come for several days.

THE WHEAT CROP

Prospects in Jackson County Are About up to the Average.

It is thought that there is a very fair prospect for a good wheat crop in Jackson county. The past winter after December was very favorable to the crop and while the rain and fly have done considerable damage, it is believed this is the condition only in spots or small sections. Grain dealers say the conditions and prospects are about up to the average for this time of year and in their reports place them at 95 per cent.

WILL BE READY FOR ANY BORDER TROUBLE

Troops Massed for the Protection of El Paso.

San Antonio, Tex., April 21.—There will be an adequate force of American soldiers on the other side of the river to prevent if possible a repetition of some of the grave conditions attending the battles at Agua Prieta, opposite Douglas, Ariz., if Francisco I. Madero, the insurrecto leader, who is now reported to be in the hills back of Juarez awaiting the answer to his demand for the surrender of that town in twenty-four hours, makes good his threat and tackles General Navarro and the federal garrison. General Duncan, in command of the department of Texas, has massed a battalion of infantry and three troops of cavalry within striking distance of El Paso, and he has disposed five other troops of cavalry within two or three hours' rail journey of the American town that may be exposed to the fire of the combatants over the Rio Grande.

It was learned at General Duncan's office and from the members of General Carter's staff that, judging from President Diaz's disposition to criticize the attitude of the American troops along the border as an answer to the demand of this government for guarantees against the taking of American lives in the border fighting, a vexatious problem may be raised by the Mexican government any day and that will be one dealing with the disputed little island near the town of Ojinaga. The international boundary commission has not yet decided to which country the disputed island belongs.

The island offers a commanding point of vantage to the insurrectos, and on many occasions they have crossed the river to the island and have fired from it back into the Mexican town which they have beleaguered. General Luque has protested to the officer in charge of the army patrol on the American side of the river that he was thus allowing the insurrectos to violate the neutrality law of the United States.

The Knight of the Silver Star

A Romance of Drussenland

By PERCY BREBNER

Copyright, 1907, by R. F. Penno & Co.

CHAPTER XIII.

THE princess' face told me nothing that night. She received me very graciously, would not let me kneel to her. But there was something in her manner which made me feel that the hopes which had grown up in my heart so quickly that day were luxuriant weeds, fit only to be cut down. She would not let me talk much about what had happened in the city.

"We are in perilous times," she said. "But you must be my prisoner still. You are not yet able to brave dangers. Here you are safe. Get strong again quickly, Sir Verrall, for I have need of you."

And so she dismissed me.

Princess Daria had a garden. The only entrance to it was from her suite of apartments. High walls surrounded it, and there was no fear of prying eyes. Here I was privileged to walk or lie at full length in the shade of some tree, filling my lungs with new health at every breath. Here Jasar and I talked, and the princess joined us, staying only a little while at first, but afterward longer. She talked of plans for the future. My friends were so few that it was impossible for me to stand unless something could be devised against my enemies. Truth to tell, my friends and enemies troubled me little just then. I was too happy to fear the future, for the princess became each day less a princess and more a woman. I lived in the present. I told them something of my country, of London, of railroads and telegraphs and of many things which in Drussenland had never been heard of.

"You tell of strange things, Sir Verrall," Jasar said. "But because the people in Drussenland are superstitious and legend-loving you must not think that we are all ready to believe tales so far beyond all possibility."

"I speak the truth. There are even more marvelous things that I have not told you of."

"Her highness loves not superstition and has no fear of disasters which the priests prophesy. We know that no miracle brought you into our land and that to account for your coming you used a legend to save yourself. Why seek to deceive us who are your friends?"

"Yes, friends," said the princess softly.

I was inclined to be angry, but a moment's reflection told me how impossible my tales must seem to them.

"Indeed, there is no deceit," I answered. "Things are as I have told you in my country. Besides, my coming was somewhat of a miracle, and it was not I who claimed to be the expected knight, remember. It was O'Ryan who suggested it, and the priests believed it."

Then I told them how I came into Drussenland, beginning with the tale that poor Mustapha told that night.

"Tell me the history of Drussenland," I said.

Jasar told it to me, hurrying through the legendary part, dilating fully on that which was known to be true. The Drussenlanders were the descendants

To me it seemed clear. These people were descended from the survivors of the last crusade.

Ever and again the princess would lead me to consider my present position. No ancient history could help me in that.

"The days pass swiftly," she said. "You are almost strong now. The priests clamor for action, and the people cry with them. What are we to do?"

"Jasar suggested a way out of the difficulty," I answered. "My death would relieve your highness of much trouble."

"It is no time to talk folly. It is time to act," was all she said to me.

The princess told me that she needed knights with strong arms and strong courage. She said the priests were loyal to her apart from my cause. After a long conversation I suggested to her that I would attend the next council and tell the members that her enemies should be defeated. I volunteered to go to Yadasara as a spy. The princess was apprehensive of such a scheme, but I soon relieved her fears. I told her I hoped to place her on the throne, and when she asked me what I expected as a reward I answered her in a language that love dictated. She understood. Then she asked my name. When I told her it was Clinton Verrall it pleased her.

"It is the name of the man who worships you," I whispered, and I took her hand and, bending low, kissed it passionately. I dared not touch her lips.

Just then Jasar came in and told the princess that the count was asking for her. She gave me her hand and said: "Be brave for my sake tomorrow. For my sake return from Yadasara." Then she left me.

The council was fixed for the afternoon. It was an unusual time, but the princess had so ordered it. The moment I entered the hall I felt equal to any emergency. Danger hung in the air, and my courage rose to meet it.

I mounted the steps and took my place as near to the princess' chair as possible. I endeavored to hold my own firmly but courteously, neither making myself too prominent nor seeking to escape observation. I was not a prisoner about to plead for mercy, but a man prepared to hurl defiance in the teeth of a crowd incensed against me. Vasca stood beside the chair and to him I bowed. Then I turned to the chief of the priests and bowed to him lower still.

Purposely, I think, the princess did not keep the council waiting. I had taken my place only a few moments when the curtains were drawn, and she stepped to her seat. She shot one swift glance at me—so swift that I doubt if any other noticed it. She bowed proudly as a roar of voices welcomed her, but she looked pale and anxious.

"It has ever been our custom in Drussenland to let even a prisoner speak an answer to his accusers." It was a relief to hear her voice break the silence. She spoke softly, yet so clearly that she must have been heard even in the farthest corner. "In these days, however, it has pleased certain of our subjects to speak bitterly of one who is not a prisoner—one who came to us and was welcomed by us as a knight long expected in our land. The judgment that he was what he has claimed to be rested not with us. Wisdom greater than ours declared his coming to be propitious to our state, and in arms he has borne himself gallantly, as many a valiant warrior can here attest. Yet some among us have spoken bitterly of him, and more—have, in their hearts, condemned him without a hearing. That is indeed injustice."

"But worse offense has been committed. In our own palace, at our very door, was this knight attacked while he guarded our person. If the assassin's knife were raised against us, then truly we and all our loyal subjects owe this knight thanks for his protection of us. If, as some affirm, the attack was made upon the knight, then are there some among us whom it would be well to stamp out, since for lack of courage they seek to murder and are no true Drussenlanders. We know that the hand which held the knife was not the hand of him who devised the crime. The tool paid dearly for his part, and so in good time shall they who planned and who, to screen themselves from our anger, silenced forever the guards who could have betrayed them. Now we are here not to judge, nor of our wish is this council called together. It is by the wish of the knight you have accused; not all of you, but some. Only vaguely has he heard the charges brought against him, and, since there can be no steady answer to vague rumor, it is our will that you who have ought to say speak and that the knight shall answer you. You who listen," and she swept her arm round to include every upturned face in the hall—"you who listen give a patient hearing. We seek not to guide you, but be honest men, not fools of passion to be led by every one who tries to move you. Be Drussenlanders, not wretches making our street corners dangerous, men ready to creep in the dark and stab from behind. I have gloried in that I am your princess, gloried in the brave hearts I rule, gloried in your deeds, have been proud to cry to the whole world that I am a princess in Drussenland, but show me that you are cravens, men afraid to meet their enemy face to face, and I will fling this golden circle of my sovereignty among you. Make whom you will your ruler. I should think it shame to call such men my subjects."

For a moment there was silence; then a murmur ran through the hall and then a great roar. She had touched them. Dexterously she had paved the way for me.

"You, our priests, have somewhat against the knight," she said when the shouting had ceased, "and you, our loyal knights. Speak honestly, and you, Sir Verrall, answer honestly, so justice shall be done."

She looked first at the chief of the priests, then at Count Vasca and then at me.

The priest began to speak in a rather singsong tone, as though he were reciting a lesson he had committed to memory.

"The expected knight was to do many things in Drussenland," he said. "He was to bring peace and plenty into it. That he should be mighty in achievement I believed, but with that I have nothing to do. My office binds me from wielding a sword, and though my heart may leap at the sight of brave deeds, I can have no part in them. My office is to watch over the sacred things of this land, to punish those who bring our great religion into disrepute, giving occasion to those of lesser intellect to revile and turn the God we worship into a jest."

"Your highness has broken a law, and therefore your people have broken a law. Think you peace and plenty shall be poured into the laps of those who sin? I rejoiced at the knight's coming, so is my sorrow keen that he has made his mission of none effect. For him punishment awaits at the hand of him who sent him. Our duty is not to delay his going. If it be so willed that as he came miraculously so miraculously can he be taken from us, then it shall be. But death is the only means we mortals know of by which he can return. Therefore by death should we seek pardon for ourselves. I would my words could take a happier tone. If my eyes are blinded, if I have not read our laws aright, then power will be granted to the knight to increase my wisdom. I wish not to condemn him unheard. It is not I that condemn him—it is our religion which does so."

"For my own part, I had rather remain silent," said Count Vasca. "It may seem envious in me to seek to condemn a knight who in tournament has met me honestly and in the field has fought valiantly. Indeed, I speak only for the many as chief of the knights who attend your highness."

"That we know, Sir Vasca," said the princess, looking fixedly at him.

She did not take her eyes from him while he spoke. Perhaps he saw distrust in them, for, after beginning so humbly, he went on bitterly enough:

"The priest has spoken of the laws. With them I have nothing to do, but, since the priests and I have been often at variance, in that we are agreed in this matter proves the justice of our complaint. The knight was to accomplish two things with which I am concerned—to place your highness on the throne in Yadasara and to find a treasure that should bring plenty to our land. I blame not that these things are not yet accomplished, but that nothing has been done. We are at present a divided country, and whichever side finds the treasure wins also the throne in Yadasara. These foreign dogs the king has brought into this land would leave him tomorrow were they paid for doing so, and there are hundreds of men in this city who would march to Yadasara tomorrow were the treasure in the king's hands. The time is ripe to win or to lose, for success or rebellion. They expected much of Sir Verrall's coming. They believe they are doomed to disappointment, therefore they cry out. Though, as a true Drussenlander, I have no pity for those who attacked the knight when he stood your highness' sentinel, still I affirm that he has only himself to blame. If he is the expected knight let him fulfill his mission; if not let him answer for the lie which made us give him welcome."

A murmur of approbation sounded through the hall. Then all eyes turned toward me. I found courage in the look that was in the princess' eyes as she turned to me.

"I am accused of breaking a law or of causing your highness to break it," I said. "It is true. That I succeeded, though with difficulty, as you, who heard me make my petition, know well, is the greatest good I have accomplished since I have been in Drussenland. I will tell you why. Your priest said if he had judged amiss I should have power to increase his wisdom. That power I have, I wish him power to understand, and not only the priest, but all you who hear me. From whence I came you do not know. You have a legend which you look to be fulfilled, and at my coming you welcomed me. Think you fulfillment comes exactly as men expect? The priests have wisdom, and they prophesy, but I came into Drussenland from a more enlightened country, where the wisdom of your priests would be but as the idle prattling of a child. This law of yours that prisoners of war shall be slain was framed when men knew little of him they worshipped. This he bids me tell you—that to kill men as you would kill your prisoners is murder. In that the priests' prophecy disaster to this land because that law is broken they err most grievously. I prophesy peace for this land if you let mercy rule you rather than vengeance. I fear nothing of what you can do to me. Death! What is it? A moment in time that sends me to a life of rest. But I have a mission, as every true man has, and if in living I cannot fulfill it it shall be fulfilled in dying. That is my answer to your priests. They err from ignorance. I have been given power to speak wisdom to them. Let them beware how they shut their ears to the voice that speaks the truth."

"Count Vasca's accusation is of a different kind. I have not yet placed your princess on the throne in Yadasara. I have not yet found the treasure hidden in this land. But he has made a graver accusation, not against me, but against you. What men are they who hold loyalty so lightly, who care so little who reigns over them, who grumble so loudly and who would so readily march to Yadasara to fight against her highness? Who are they? Speak! In her highness' name, I promise pardon to any man who confesses to disloyalty. No answer? What! Are we so strangely divided that in this hall only loyal subjects find a place? Are all the murmurers without? Remember, the count accused you, not I. I have fought beside some of you. I have witnessed many of you do gallantly. I have more faith in you than the count has."

And then, turning quickly to the princess, I added:

"These are honest men, your highness, but they feared to contradict your kinsman."

The rafters rang again. I had become an orator to some purpose.

"You see, Count Vasca, you were mistaken. Why, when the enemy died across the river the other day were we not led to follow them? You are a soldier. You know why. The time was not ripe. It would have been to court defeat. We knew not at what point the city was least defended. Neither is the time ripe for the finding of the treasure, but it ripens."

"Any knight could speak so. We expect deeds, not words, from Sir Verrall," he answered.

"You have forced me to words. Mark you not"—and I spoke to those in the hall—"mark you not how the two things go together? To set the princess on the throne in Yadasara and to find a treasure. At the sword's point must one be accomplished. Is it not the sword's point which shall unlock the hiding place of the other? Your treasure lies hidden where only knightly deeds can win it. Your treasure is valueless until the foreigner is driven from the land. Where think you a treasure would most likely lie in Drussenland? Where but in the greatest stronghold the land contains—in the fortress of Yadasara?"

Again the rafters rang. The knights shouted as good knights will shout at the promise of conflict. Even the priests forgot to scowl and listened.

"Here are swords in plenty. Lead us to victory!" So the knights shouted, and I knew that the greatest danger was over.

"I will do more," I said. "Three days hence I will go to Yadasara. I will enter the city and spy out its weakness—that is, if her highness gives me leave."

The count's lip curled.

"You will not return," he said.

"I shall, Count Vasca. I shall return to lead loyal men to victory."

I turned to face the now excited crowd. I spread out my arms, and I cried to them:

"Sir knights, loyal men of Drussenland, have I answered my accusers? Shout your trust in me, or, if there is no trust, see here I stand unarmed, draw your weapons and slay me!"

I had played a bold game. It had served me well. I had won.

Soldiers Suffer Hardships

In United States troops on the Mexican border are learning the "war game." They are paying for it with many discomforts. True, there are few complaints, but pacing up and down the sandy bank of a dry stream, the hot sun shining upon the white sand of the bottom almost like a mirror; sleeping six men in a tent on the bank of the same stream, often sandwiched between a lot of foul smelling Mexican jackals; eating "camp chuck" cooked in the open, with the insubstantial sand blowing from every direction, is not any fun, and this is what the regular army of the United States is now facing.

Scattered from San Diego, Cal., to Brownsville, Tex., these khaki clad defenders of the flag are watching night and day over the destinies of a sister republic that is making no effort to guard its own frontier.

Four Hours' Guard Duty.

Throughout the entire distance, from one end of the international border to the other, stretch the brown conical tents of the soldiers. Squads of five or six men occupy each tent, a corporal or a sergeant in command of each squad. Every man does his four hours of guard duty and then rests until his turn comes again. With trying to get sleep between times the soldier has very little time for diversion.

erable distance and is then often brackish, salty or otherwise disagreeable. In the towns where the Mexican settlements are close by the water is usually procured from some shallow well that is in much danger of contamination, owing to the lack of sanitary precautions on the part of the natives.

Walk a Mile to Meals.

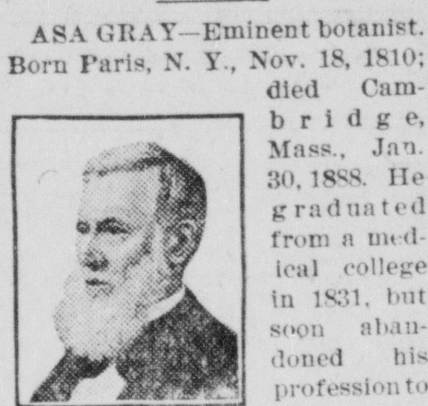

In regions where there is necessity for undue activity, as in the vicinity of the larger border towns, many of the squads, being close together, combine in a company mess and cook in some shed or under a bridge, where they have tolerably fair protection from the dust and dirt that blow with every wind. At times the men have to walk a mile to reach their meals, but out in the open country, where the cavalry must ride for great distances and where it is not possible to keep the detachments encamped close to each other, each little squad has to do its own cooking. And some of these squads are located as far as 125 miles from a railroad, especially those along the Rio Grande, east of El Paso and south of the Southern Pacific railroad, in the country called the "Big Bend." Food and even hay for the horses must be transported by wagon, and the contract price is 4 cents a pound for every pound hauled. If the wagons fail to arrive on time men and horses must wait. The only subsistence the country affords is goats and occasionally a beef, but soldiers in the field in small squads cannot consume a beef, and, besides, they have no authority to buy one. The cooking must be done in the open, under the shelter of a mesquite or a tornillo tree, and boiling is about the only method of preparing meat.

THE HALL OF FAME.

ASA GRAY—Eminent botanist. Born Paris, N. Y., Nov. 18, 1810; died Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 30, 1888. He graduated from a medical college in 1831, but soon abandoned his profession to study botany. Was appointed botanist of the Wilkes expedition in 1834, but resigned in 1837 and traveled in Europe. In 1842 made Fisher professor of natural history in Harvard and retained the chair till 1873. His great work was the "Flora of North America," and this established his place as the foremost American botanist.

Do Ghosts Haunt Swamps?

No, never. Its foolish to fear a fancied evil when there are real and deadly perils to guard against in swamps and marshes, bayous, and lowlands. These are the malaria germs that cause ague, chills and fever, weakness, aches in the bones and muscles and may induce deadly typhoid. But Electric Bitters destroys and casts out these vicious germs from the blood. "Three bottles drove all the malaria from my system," wrote Wm. Fretwell, of Lucama, N. C., "and I've had fine health ever since." Use this safe, sure remedy only. 50c at the Andrews-Schwenk Drug Co.

Enters Motor Race In Indianapolis Car

"Gil" Anderson, one of the star drivers entered in the 500-mile International Sweepstakes Race at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, Memorial Day, May 30. Anderson will drive a specially constructed Stutz racing car made by the Stutz Auto Parts Co., of Indianapolis.

AUTO PILOTS TO TRAIN

WILL TAKE REGULAR EXERCISE TO STAND STRAIN.

Louis Disbrow Has Novel Idea of Conditioning Work for Long Race at Indianapolis Track.

Many methods of physical training for automobile race drivers have been tried, but the most novel suggested for some time is the plan which Louis Disbrow, driver of the Pope-Hartford car entered in the 500-mile International Sweepstakes race at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, next Memorial Day, May 30, will use. Disbrow recently visited Indianapolis to make arrangements for the workouts of his big special car now being built at the Disbrow garage at Jamaica, Long Island, and told his idea of keeping in good physical condition.

"Gymnastics won't do a race driver much good," said the Pope-Hartford pilot, "neither will any specified course of exercises. There is one thing alone which will make a man fit to sit behind the wheel through a strain of seven hours such as the 500-mile race will mean. That is taking a daily course of hard knocks over the country roads in a racing car at a fairly good rate of speed. I have made plans to do this for at least thirty days before the race and will be in Indianapolis with my racing car and two practice cars by May 1.

"The practice cars will be used the most, but the big car will be tried enough to put it into perfect tune. In the practice cars I shall take cross-country trips to the cities of the Middle West, such as St. Louis, Chicago, Omaha, Kansas City and others. I shall drive two or three hundred miles daily for several days at a stretch, and in that manner harden myself so that the 500-mile drive will be nothing unusual for me.

"It is my plan now to drive my practice cars through New York to Indianapolis and this will give me a fair start in training. My mechanics will be carried along at all times so that they will be in as good physical condition as I am. I believe that every driver in the long race should carry a mechanic, as the course will have thirty-five or forty cars going at once and the mechanic will be forced to keep his eye to the rear watching for cars that will want to pass."

The Speedway management will require every driver in the long grind to carry a mechanic and will arrange platforms at mile intervals around the track so that cars may run upon them and get off the track to make repairs or change tires when they find it necessary to do so at points other than at the pits. It is probable that all of the cars will carry a spare tire or two during the race so that the drivers may avail themselves of the use of the repair platforms.

GOLD ATTRACTS NOTED DRIVER.

Fred Belcher Enters Big Race at Indianapolis with His Knox.

One more well known automobile racing pilot has decided that the 500 mile $25,000 Indianapolis race is the quickest route to fame and fortune. Fred Belcher, victor in over twenty-five contests, has purchased the 60 H. P. 6-cylinder Knox car which he drove in the Vanderbilt Cup race, sent in his application and entry fee for the big event, and will embark on a career as an independent racing driver at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway next Memorial Day.

Belcher has been in two Vanderbilt Cup contests, has won the Hollenbeck Trophy two years in succession and has done well in many contests of less importance. His eleven years automobile driving experience has developed that most necessary judgment and speed sense without which no driver can ever hope to rank among the winners, while his splendid physique and endurance carry him through the hardest contests.

The Knox car he will pilot has a record of 94 miles an hour and is the same machine that he drove in the Vanderbilt Cup race. This is a stock car built with the famous Knox power plant and capable of great speed.

S.S.S. REMOVES BLOOD HUMORS

The intimate relation of the skin to the blood is shown by the fact that impurities or poisons of any character are usually manifested in some form on the outer cuticle. Humors in the blood produce what we term in general, Skin Diseases. These are divided into several classes known as Eczema, Acne, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Psoriasis, Pimples, Rashes, etc., and each of these troubles indicate the presence of humors or acids in the circulation. The humors and acids by their irritating nature, cause the delicate flesh just beneath the outer skin to ulcerate and discharge, and soon the body is disfigured with eruptions which often are torturing to the sufferer because of soreness or intense itching. Salves, washes, lotions, etc., can have no curative effect on skin diseases. Such treatment can perhaps soothe the irritated flesh, but the real cure must be accomplished by purifying the blood. S.S.S. cures Skin Diseases of every kind by purifying the blood and removing the humors from the circulation. It neutralizes all impure acids, cools the over-heated blood, and builds it up to normal strength. Then the skin instead of being irritated by acid impurities and humors, is nourished, soothed and softened by pure, rich blood. Book on Skin Diseases and medical advice free. S.S.S. is for sale at drug stores. THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

Storing Oxygen In the Blood.

Professional divers, who remain under water from two to five minutes at a time, are accustomed before submerging themselves to take deep inspirations for ten minutes. The object is said to be to store up oxygen, not in the lung cells, but in the blood corpuscles. This renders a temporary suspension of the breathing possible by supplying the corpuscles with an extra quantity of oxygen, to be exchanged chemically with the carbonic acid, produced by vital processes, in the blood.

The Great Secret.

Towne—You say it's impossible for a woman to keep a secret?
Browne—Yes.
Towne—How about her age?
Browne—She doesn't keep that a secret. She merely tries to.—Philadelphia Press.

Try a Want Ad. in the Republican.

Stories of the Civil War never grow old, as is evidenced by the great interest manifested in the "Civil War Day by Day, or Fifty Years Ago Today" articles which are appearing in The Indianapolis Star, both Daily and Sunday.

The articles have been highly commended by men prominent in G. A. R. circles, as well by teachers of history. These articles appeal to the veteran for the reason that they recall the soul-trying days of 1861-65; to the younger generation because they give an insight into that memorable conflict in a concise, and yet highly interesting way. They are history, but not history put on a dry, matter-of-fact way. To add further interest to the articles, they are strikingly illustrated.

Two Estate Gas Ranges to Be Given Away

Special arrangements have been made by this company to get Mr. Charles E. Draper, probably the greatest and best posted man in this country on gas ranges, to come to this city and give a series of free demonstrations on how to use a gas range.

He will explain how to cook on a gas range, how not to cook on a gas range. He will explain and demonstrate how very economical gas ranges are, how to get the most with the smallest amount of gas.

FREE DEMONSTRATIONS

April 25, 26, 27 and 28, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday,
From 3:00 to 5:00 P. M.

Everyone in Seymour is invited to be present. We will give a coupon ticket to everyone (not children) who will come to these free demonstrations. These coupon tickets are numbered and the following articles will be given away:

FREE===2 Estate Gas Ranges, 1 Estate Water Heater, and 5000 Feet of Gas

Tuesday we will give away
5000 feet of Gas.

Wednesday we give away
one $12.50 Estate Water Heater.

Thursday we will give away
one $18.00 Estate Gas Range.

Friday we will give away an $18.00 Estate Gas Range.

You must be present with your ticket when these are given away and you must live on a line, or on a proposed extension of the Company's mains, and the appliance must be installed within 30 days.

Personal instruction will be given anyone between the hours of 9 and 12 a. m., absolutely without charge or obligation. Refreshments will be served. All demonstrations free.
